Goals

Each sicha will inform the student what his goals for that week are

Translations

There is a list of the more challenging Yiddish words in each sicha together with their translation.

Yiddish Text

The Yiddish was put back into the "Likutei Sichos" font and format

Skills

A selected skill/vocab words that will be the focus of that particular week.

Footnotes

Footnotes will give the reader different insights and background information about concepts the Rebbe references in the Sichas.

Translation of Concepts

A free translation of the content of the sicha which allows the student to gain an understanding of what is trying to be said as he works his way through the Yiddish. The numbers indicate which section of the sicha corresponds to which English paragraph.

"Getting started"

A selected portion of the Sichas that has a linear translation, with nekudas on the Yiddish

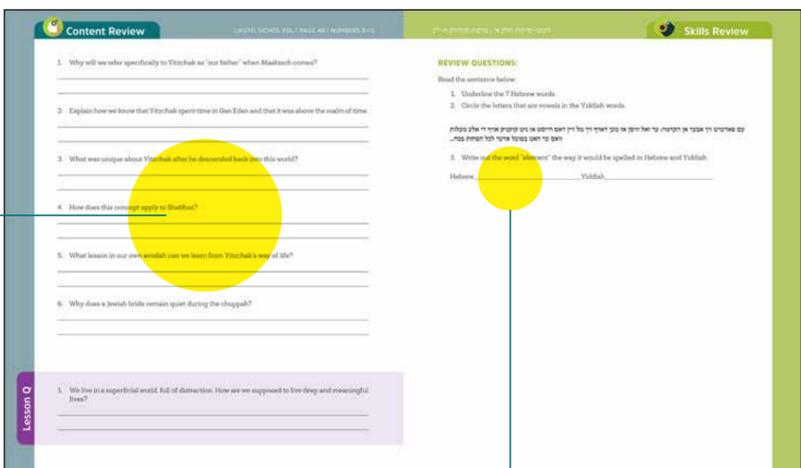

Letter of the Rebbe

Each week there will be a letter of the Rebbe in the workbook that allows the reader to see how the Rebbe connected the lesson of that week's sicha to someone's specific situation.

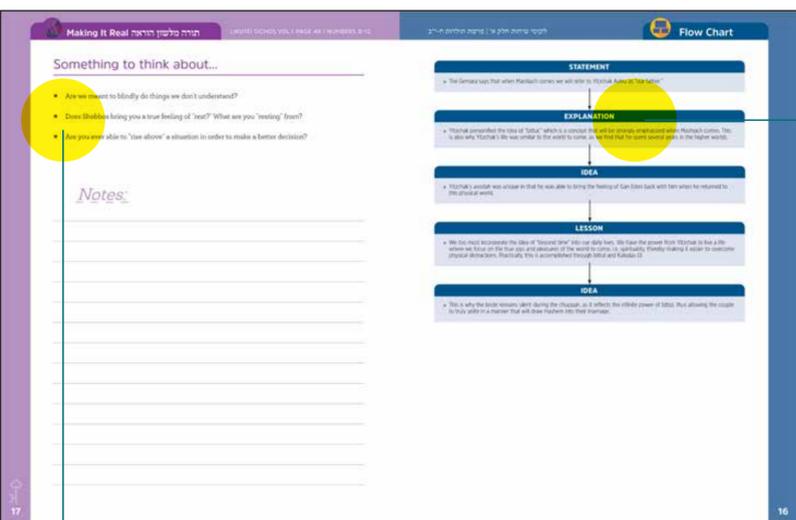

Content Review Questions

Questions that allow the teacher and the student to verify that he understood the concepts explained in the sicha as well as the flow of how the different elements blend together. The questions are generally quite broad and cover the scope of the entire Sichas.

Skill review

Review exercises for the new skill acquired on that week.

Flowchart

Every sicha will have a flowchart that maps out how the different parts of the sicha connect to each other and how each one fits into the bigger picture.

Making It Real

A few thought provoking ideas that will assist the reader to identify with the message of the Sichas in a personal and tangible way.

In Addition...

Inner Flap with Yiddish Rules

There will be an inner flap that the students will be able to reference that will show all the rules of how to read Yiddish. Although these will be taught in the skills section of the program, we figured it may take time for beginners to get used to and they would benefit from having constant access to the basic rules. (Similar to the flap on a Haftarah book, which has the brochos on it.)

Laminated Card

There will be a card that will be placed on the inside of the book that will have the one-hundred most frequently used words in Likutei Sichos. This card will be used as a reference for beginners because most of the words will not be translated within the actual Sichas.
